People Rally Across the US to Get Voters to Vote Early

From: PBS NewsHour Mined: 2026-10-18 3 min read

On Saturday, people held rallies in cities and towns across the United States. They wanted voters to vote early in the midterm elections. Midterm elections happen in the middle of a president's four-year term. Election Day this year is November 3.

A group called No Kings planned the rallies. The group is against President Donald Trump. Organizers said the events were nonpartisan, which means not tied to one political party.

In Washington, D.C., a band played near the Lincoln Memorial. Even in chilly weather, people danced. Signs said "VOTE EARLY."

In Atlanta, City Councilman Michael Julian Bond said voting is like a superpower. "Be a super hero, use your power," he said.

Voting by mail is a topic people disagree about. Trump has claimed, without evidence, that voting fraud cost him the 2020 election. On Thursday, his government sued election officials in California over how some mail-in ballots are counted.

Word Treasure

rallies -- Big gatherings where people come together to support a cause.
midterm elections -- Elections held in the middle of a president's four-year term.
nonpartisan -- Not tied to one political party.
fraud -- Cheating or lying to get something unfairly.
sued -- Took someone to court over a disagreement.
ballots -- The forms people use to vote.

Background you need

In the United States, people vote to choose their leaders, and many states let them vote early or by mail.

Midterm elections happen halfway through a president's four-year term.

Groups sometimes hold rallies to encourage people to vote.

Break it down

WHO: The No Kings group and people across the US
WHAT: Rallies urging voters to vote early in the midterm elections
WHERE: Cities including Washington, D.C., and Atlanta
WHY: To get people to vote before Election Day on November 3

Why it matters

Voting is how people choose their leaders, and one day you will get to vote too.

Test what you remember

1. When is Election Day this year?

- (A) July 4
- (B) October 16
- (C) November 3
- (D) December 25

2. What did the rallies ask people to do?

- (A) Buy tickets
- (B) Plant trees
- (C) Stay home
- (D) Vote early

3. What does nonpartisan mean?

- (A) Held at night
- (B) Not tied to one political party
- (C) Very loud
- (D) Only for kids

4. Where did a band play?

- (A) Near the Lincoln Memorial
- (B) At a stadium in Texas
- (C) On a beach
- (D) Inside a school

5. What did Michael Julian Bond compare voting to?

- (A) A superpower
- (B) A recipe
- (C) A puzzle
- (D) A race

6. Whom did Trump's government sue on Thursday?

- (A) Schools in Atlanta
- (B) Election officials in California
- (C) The No Kings group
- (D) A band in Washington

Answer key (try the quiz first!): 1: C 2: D 3: B 4: A 5: A 6: B

Questions to think about

1. No Kings organizers: Say the events are nonpartisan and urge people to vote early.
2. Michael Julian Bond, Atlanta councilman: Says voting is like a superpower people should use.
3. President Donald Trump: Has claimed, without evidence, that voting fraud cost him the 2020 election.

MY THOUGHTS (at least 20 words):