Jay-Z Ends His Tour With Surprise Guests in Los Angeles

From: Rolling Stone Music Mined: 2026-10-26 3 min read

Jay-Z ended his tour with a night full of surprises. At his second concert at Los Angeles' SoFi Stadium, the last show of the Jay-Z 30 Tour, he brought out Snoop Dogg, Dr. Dre, and Too Short.

Too Short came on first, singing his 2006 hit Blow the Whistle, with Jay-Z adding his Playoff freestyle. Later, Jay-Z sang his own song D'Evils over the beat of a Snoop Dogg song, and Snoop Dogg came onstage. Then Dr. Dre joined them for a medley of The Next Episode, California Love, Nothin' But a 'G' Thang, and Still D.R.E.

Before the show, there were unconfirmed reports on social media that ticket prices for Saturday's show had fallen, with some tickets even given away for free. During Encore, Jay-Z spoke about the rumours and about artificial intelligence. He told the crowd to trust what they could see and hear for themselves, and to question everything they feel, especially in a world where technology can trick people.

The night before, he had brought out his daughter Blue Ivy, Scarface, DJ Khaled, and John Legend.

Word Treasure

medley -- A group of songs performed one after another as one performance.

freestyle -- Rapping or singing made up on the spot.

Encore -- The extra part of a concert after the main show, when performers come back to sing more.

artificial intelligence -- Computer systems that can do tasks that usually need human thinking.

rumours -- Stories going around that have not been confirmed as true.

Background you need

A concert tour is a series of shows where a singer performs in different places, ending with a final show.

At a concert, a surprise guest is another performer who joins the main singer on stage.

SoFi Stadium is a large venue in Los Angeles where big concerts are held.

Break it down

WHO: Jay-Z, with surprise guests Snoop Dogg, Dr. Dre, and Too Short.
WHAT: Jay-Z ended his tour with a final show full of surprise guest performances.
WHERE: At Los Angeles' SoFi Stadium, at his second concert there.
WHY: Because it was the last show of the Jay-Z 30 Tour, and surprise guests joined him on stage.

Why it matters

It shows why it helps to check what you see and hear for yourself instead of believing every rumour you hear.
