It was a happy day for British tennis fans at the Wrexham Open in Wales. Three British players won their matches and reached the quarter-finals.

Alicia Dudeney played a very long match. It lasted almost three hours! She beat Susan Bandecchi of Switzerland. It was her seventh win in a row.

Hannah Klugman is only 17. She beat Anna Siskova, a player ranked higher than her. Last year, Klugman reached the final of the French Open junior girls' event.

Jodie Burrage also won. She beat Noma Noha Akugue in two sets, and the second set ended in a close tiebreak.

There was a surprise too. The top player in the tournament, Anna Blinkova, lost to Suzan Lamens of the Netherlands.

The quarter-finals are on Friday, the semi-finals on Saturday, and the final on Sunday.

Word Treasure

quarter-finals -- The round with eight players left in a tournament.
tiebreak -- A special short game to decide a tied set.
junior -- For young players, usually under 18.
semi-finals -- The round with four players left, before the final.

Background you need

In a tennis tournament, players who lose are out, and winners move on until the final.

The top-ranked players get special spots in the draw so they don't meet too early.
